Please remember to note any signs of ocular pain

At least once per shift or whenever pain relief is due, please make a note of any ocular pain signs seen (can be dotted up to note SoOP as a nursing intervention TID).

The following acronym can be used to help remember:

Blepharospasm (increased blinking)

Lacrimation (increased tearing – prior to meds)

Eyes open (is the affected eye held open/ partially open/ closed)

Photophobia (is the patient sensitive to light?)

Head shy (is the patient trying to hide the affected eye, flinching away or any change in tolerance to medications)
